

GUNNISON TUNNEL IS OPENED BY TAFT

He Puts in Operation Government's Greatest Irrigation Project.

JOYOUS CELEBRATION

President Sees Nature's Glories on Western Slope of Rockies.

MONTROSE, COL., September 23.—President Taft passed the day on the western slope of the Rocky Mountains and amid a succession of scenes typical of the great Western country. Late this afternoon Mr. Taft stood on the brink of the deepest irrigation ditch in all the West, and far out in the foothills, with not a settlement in sight, made the electrical connection which started a flow of water through the Gunnison Tunnel, which will reclaim 10,000 acres of arid land. It was the setting in operation of the greatest irrigation project the United States government ever has undertaken, and the opening was made the occasion of a joyous celebration throughout the Valley of Uncompahgre.

Before traveling out to the west portal of the tunnel on a little narrow-gauge train, the President visited the Montrose County Fair, and after some formal speech-making, in which he and the Mayor and the Governor and several others took part, he was given a real touch of Western life—a relay race of cowboys. The race was a novel and exciting affair. A girl of sixteen was matched against two older riders, and carrying the sympathy of the crowd with her from the start, won the two and one-half mile race with three changes of horses by almost a quarter of a mile.

During his travel to-day the President had ample opportunity to study the effect of irrigation. For a long time his train would run through stretches of country where as far as the eye could reach the only vegetation in sight consisted of a few greasewood bushes or sage brush.

Then, out of a rocky canon the train suddenly would push upon a veritable oasis, where waving green fields of alfalfa and miles of orchards with trees laden with fruit told of the miracle wrought by the irrigated water.

At Grand Junction and here at Montrose the President visited the fruit exhibits of county fairs, and was told the almost unbelievable story of the season's yield. Enormous peaches, apples, pears, plums, vari-colored grapes and almost every other known fruit, as well as enormous samples of the vegetable growth of the district, were shown to the President.

The scene attending the opening of the Gunnison Tunnel was picturesque. The tunnel has been hewn through six miles of a mountain range, which when the project is completed next spring, will divert the waters of the Gunnison River, now flowing away in waste, to the valley on this side of the mountains, where minor private projects of irrigation already have told the wonders of the soil.

A Golden Key. During the day Mr. Taft was presented with a golden key to the city of Montrose, a gold badge commemorating his visit and a gold table bell. It was with this little bell that the President opened the tunnel, opening this afternoon when one of the thirty-two Colorado sheriffs who have accompanied the President across the State got into an attention with L. L. Daniels, superintendent of the tunnel, when the latter was trying to shake hands with the President. Mr. Daniels was threatened, as his friends were ready to resent the action of the officer, who, during the scuffle, pulled a pistol. The President heard the quarrel, and stopped for a moment as he was making his way to the train. He was told that nothing serious, however, and proceeded.

"Berry's for Clothes"

King Edward, so the London papers say, recently wore out trousers creased on the SIDES!!!!

But the day has passed when American fashions are affected by English eccentricities.

The New York Times says Americans are the best dressed people in the world.

The most striking part of our clothes is that they show more individuality than those of any other nation.

That—individuality—is what you get here, at Berry's, as well as the best clothing in every other way.

Never sold so many soft Hats before—never were such nobly styles for young men and men who feel young as we are showing now.

14. The consolidated municipality shall provide and maintain an adequate system of fire protection within the territorial limits of the present city of Manchester.

Gas and Schools. 15. The city of Manchester, within the present territorial limits of the city of Manchester, shall be provided with adequate school facilities for both white and colored children.

16. The present territorial limits of the city of Manchester shall be supplied with water from the city of Manchester, within the present territorial limits of the city of Manchester, at rates charged other consumers.

17. Within two years next following the date when consolidation shall become effective, gas shall be distributed in mains throughout said territorial limits as far as practicable and reasonable, to be determined by the Council of the consolidated municipality, at rates charged other consumers.

18. There shall be allowed, in the event of consolidation, within the said territorial limits, or apportioned to it, twenty-five (25) licenses for the sale or manufacture of liquor, so long as such licenses shall be restricted or limited in number by the municipality as now limited by the city of Manchester, and should the number of such licenses be subsequently still further reduced, the city of Manchester shall have the right to increase the same to the number of the consolidated municipality, and to such extent as may be necessary to accomplish this end the ordinance of the consolidated municipality shall be amended.

19. Eliminated.

20. Until such time as the consolidated municipality shall provide a sewer system capable of taking off the surface drainage and house sewage, no charge shall be made for sewer service as provided by chapter 23, section 20, of Richmond City Code, 1898, but as storm or trunk sewers and street catch basins are installed in the streets, or the present sewers are made available for said purpose, the city of Manchester, within the area drained shall become subject to sewer tax, as provided by said chapter and section, and the ordinance of the consolidated municipality.

21. That the ordinances of the present city of Manchester, relating to the establishment of plants and location of tanks for the storage and distribution of oil or grease shall not be effective within that part of the territorial limits of the present city of Manchester lying between Hull Street, on the north, and the present corporation limits of the city of Manchester, on the east, and Hull Street, on the south.

22. Eliminated. (Covered by section 21.)

23. Eliminated.

24. The consolidated municipality shall assume the present bonded indebtedness of the city of Manchester and all property and assets of said city, including the sinking fund, shall become the assets of the combined municipality as soon as consolidation is perfected.

INDORSED BY T. P. A.

Members Heartily Approve General Plan for Consolidation. At a meeting of the Travelers' Protective Association held last night, the policy of the Chamber of Commerce and the Business Men's Club of Manchester and Chesterfield as to the consolidation of Richmond and Manchester was most heartily endorsed. By the unanimous vote of the meeting, which was an unusually large one, it was decided to appoint a committee of seven from the association to cooperate with those from the City Council, the Chamber of Commerce and the Manchester organizations.

President Christian considered it best not to name the committee last night, but after careful consideration, will appoint it and send a list to Business Director Dabney before the next meeting. Hereafter the representation from the Travelers' Protective Association will meet in conjunction with the meeting and address the members on the subject of consolidation.

LAST TRIBUTE PAID TO DEAD GOVERNOR

Body of John A. Johnson Rests Beside That of His Mother.

HIS GRAVE IN ST. PETER

Thousands Stand With Heads Bowed as Funeral Cortege Passes.

ST. PETER, MINN., September 23.—The body of Governor John A. Johnson was buried in the family lot in Green Hills Cemetery here this afternoon in a grave adjoining that of his mother.

At the Presbyterian Church the body lay in state and was viewed by hundreds of citizens of St. Peter.

Rev. R. E. C. Clarke read the sermon, using the text, "Know ye not that a prince and a great man has fallen this day?" Brief services were held at the cemetery and the local company of the National Guard fired a salute as the casket was lowered into the grave.

In announcing his text, Mr. Clarke said that no more expressive couplet than a prince and a great man could be used to characterize Governor Johnson. He spoke of the great loss to the State and to the nation in the death of Governor Johnson and closed with a glowing personal tribute to his character and achievements.

Floral tributes were taken to the church and cemetery by the wagonload. The various State departments, municipal, placed in the casket, as well as individuals, contributed set pieces and beautiful bouquets.

St. Peter, the birthplace and final resting place of the late Governor John A. Johnson, held a concourse of people more than double its population.

From the small towns and surrounding counties, as well as from the large cities of the State, thousands gathered to pay a last tribute in the final obsequies over the remains of Minnesota's son.

The buildings were draped in black and white crepe, flags were at half-mast, and pictures of the late Governor, wreathed in national colors, were seen everywhere. But these outward manifestations were but slightly indicative of the deep and sincere pervading gloom. At stations all along the route from St. Paul crowds were present to pay homage. At Shakopee, Belleplaine and other stations the whole population of each town was at the station. School children with flags pointed downward lined the streets, each side of the train, with small boys and gray-haired men stood with bowed heads as the Governor's body was hurried towards its resting place.

A special train from Minneapolis carrying the Mayor and city officials, from that city preceded the funeral train.

As the train pulled into the station here a heavy rain began to fall, but the thousands of persons stood with uncovered heads. The sun appeared again before the procession reached the Presbyterian Church. The body was escorted from the church by Company K, Second Infantry, Minnesota National Guard.

The streets and sidewalks all the way from the station to the church were lined with mourners who stood with bowed heads as the Governor's body was carried past.

As the funeral car passed along the streets little girls dressed in white strewn bunches of flowers in its path. All the blossoms of the local flower gardens had been appropriated, and garlands were scattered in this way.

for its execution we must begin with the food and the means of transportation of the wild man. Even this must be reduced and simplified to fit the new environment.

"With due regard to the complimentary eloquence of the chairman and others, candor compels me to say that the effort of getting to the pole is not one of physical endurance, nor is it fair to call it bravery; but a proper understanding of the needs of the stomach and a knowledge of the limits of the brute force of the motive power, be it man or beast.

Lessons of Experience. "The conquest of the pole, possible through the accumulated lessons of early ages of experience. The failure of our less successful predecessors were stepping stones to ultimate success. The real pathfinders of the pole were the early explorers."

the early Danish, the Dutch, the English and the Norse, Italian and American explorers. With these worthy forerunners we must therefore share the good fruits which your chairman has put into this basket.

"A similar obligation is due to the wild man. The twin families of wild folk, the Eskimo and the Indian, were important factors to us. The use of pemican and the snow shoe, which makes the penetration of the Arctic mystery barely possible, has been borrowed from the American Indian. The method of travel, the motor force and the native ingenuity, without which the polar quest would be a hopeless task, have been taken from the Eskimo. To savage man, therefore, who has no flag, we are bound to give a part of this fruit.

"To John H. Bradley—the man who paid the bill—belongs at least one-half of this fruit.

"The Canadian government sent its expedition, under Captain Bernier, 1,000 miles out of its course to help us returning, shivering and withered muscles were filled out at the expense of Danish hospitality. And last but not least—the reception with open arms by fellow-explorers—to you and all belongs this basket of good things which the chairman has placed on my shoulder.

"Nothing would suit me better than to tell you to-night the complete story of our quest, but the very first telegram gives more specific data than I could hope to tell you in an after-dinner address. Therefore, I shall devote the latter part of the evening to certain phases of our adventure.

Success Barely Possible. "One of the most remarkable charges brought out is that I did not seek a geographical license to start for the pole. Now, gentlemen, the fact is that I did not know of the existence of a law that might be a mystery, but you who know will appreciate that no explorer can start and say that he will reach the pole. Many good men have tried before. All have failed. All understand the problem that success is but barely possible when every conceivable circumstance is favorable. It is only necessary to make an announcement that an expedition embarks for the pole to start an undesirable bombast and flourish of trumpets.

"This I chose to escape. Mr. John H. Bradley furnished the funds for our expedition. The business concerned us only. I believed then as I believe now that if we succeeded there would be time enough to fly the banner of victory. You are here to-night—Mr. Bradley is here, and I am here, and we have come together to celebrate that victory.

"Now, gentlemen, I appeal to you as explorers and as men. Am I bound to appeal to anybody, to any man, to any body of men—for a license to look for the pole?

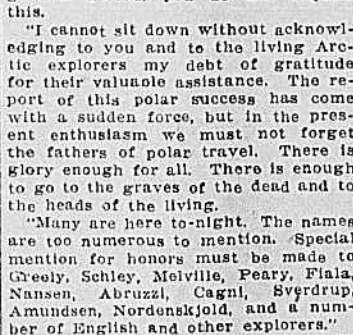

"Another criticism is the charge of our inadequate equipment. We have met this. You know that we had every possible aid to success in sledge traveling. A big ship is no advantage. An army of white men who at best are novices is a distinct hindrance, while a cumbersome luxury of equipment is fatal to progress. We chose to live a life as simple as possible, and we forced the strands of human endurance to scientific limits. If you will reach the pole, there is no other way. For our simple needs, Mr. Bradley furnished sufficient funds. We were not overburdened with the usual paraphernalia of an expedition, but I did not start for that purpose.

Tangible Account. "Now, as to the excitement of the press and their efforts to force important records into print. In reply to this I have taken the stand that I have given a tangible account of our journey. It is as complete as the preliminary reports of any previous explorer. The data, the observations, the records are of exactly the same character. Heretofore, such evidence has been taken with faith, and the complete record was not expected until the expedition had returned to deliver all within a few months.

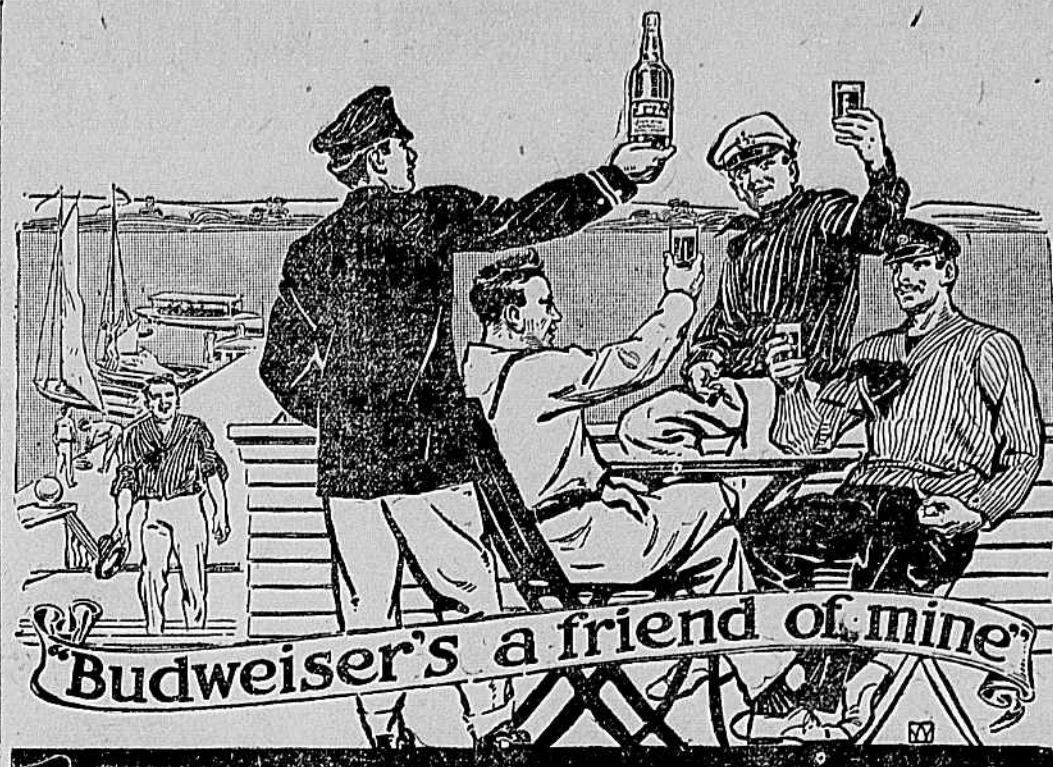

"Now, gentlemen, about the pole. We arrived April 21, 1908. We discovered new land along the 102d meridian, between the 84th and the 85th parallel. Beyond this there was absolutely no life and comfort. The low was in large, heavy fields, with few pressure lines. The drift was south of east, the wind was south of west. Clear weather gave good regular observations nearly every day. These observations, combined with those at the pole on the 21st and 22d of April, were sufficient to guarantee our claim. When taken in connection with our general record, you do not require this.

"I cannot sit down without acknowledging to you and to the living Arctic explorers my debt of gratitude for their valuable assistance. The report of this polar success has come with a sudden force, but in the present enthusiasm we must not forget the fathers of polar travel. There is glory enough for all. There is enough to go to the graves of the dead and to the heads of the living.

"Many are here to-night. The names are too numerous to mention. Special mention for honors must be made to Greeley, Schley, Melville, Peary, Flaherty, Nansen, Abuzzi, Cagni, Sverdrup, Amundsen, Nordenskjold, and a number of English and other explorers."

News of Manchester

Manchester Bureau, Times-Dispatch, September 23.

The Buildings and Land Committee met in Council chamber last night at 8 o'clock to settle various matters of more or less consequence. The following citizens were in attendance: J. C. Stelling, N. E. Bailey, chairman; R. Brown, sub-chairman; W. Workman and T. A. Taylor. Three other members were absent, but by the rules, only four are necessary to transact business. Numerous bids and bills were presented by Mr. Bailey, the chairman, for the approval of the committee. After some deliberation and inquiry into the nature and extent of these bills, it was moved that they be paid without further discussion. The business of the most importance brought up was that of the necessity for repairs upon the roof of the fire building.

It seems that a subcommittee had been selected some time ago to examine into the condition of the building. The different bids and specifications relative to repairs had been made, but for some unknown reason they had been misplaced. The program was in a bad way, especially in regard to leaks and shakiness. A note should be sent to Mr. Laprade, the City Engineer, relative to examining the roof and requesting him to report to the Buildings and Land Committee as to the nature of the damage. Following this the meeting adjourned.

The "Peleg and Betsy" concert for the benefit of West End Methodist Episcopal Church, last night. A large and enthusiastic house was present, and much was realized for the cause. The program was varied and of the highest quality. The evening was the best. The program was presented by Mrs. A. A. Adkins and J. H. Smith. It was exceedingly humorous and well done, and brought forth prolonged applause. Mrs. Adkins, in a selected solo, delighted all with her pleasing voice. The Oak Grove Mandolin Club, composed of the following: Mrs. A. A. Adkins, Walter East, Ingram Tatum, Henry Moore and Walter and Raymond Blankenship, played some very stirring music. The program was well received. The absence of Mr. Scarpitto was regretted. He was down for two violin solos, "Peleg and Betsy," Mrs. A. A. Adkins and J. H. Smith; chorus, "Blow You Merry Breezes"; solo, "Peleg and Betsy"; chorus, "Peleg and Betsy"; chorus, "Moonlight Bells and Song"; chorus, "The Sea Song."

James Scott (colored), for maliciously wounding Conductor Moss, of the Passenger and Power Company, on May 3, was given nine years in the penitentiary. Scott has already served three years in the reformatory.

Clis Trimble was acquitted of the above charge. Willis Pulliam represented Trimble. Cleveland Haband was tried before Judge Charles Nichols will be tried to-morrow for breaking into Bishop's Junkshop, at 730 P. M. Friday. On Friday morning a street fight between Eleven and Twelfth in Hull.

The board of officers of the Dixie Athletic Club will hold its regular meeting to-night at 8:30 o'clock. The members are: D. H. Day, A. J. Daffron, E. R. Sampson, C. H. Clark, M. A. Campbell, W. H. Owens, T. C. Jones, J. S. Jones, Fred Patch and Mark R. Lloyd.

There will be a series of Y. M. C. A. meetings this winter at the Wonderland Theatre on Sundays for boys between twelve and sixteen years of age. Next Sunday a meeting will be held for boys of every denomination. Officers of the different organizations will be elected. There will be a regular meeting of the gymnasium leaders' class at 7:30 P. M. Friday. On Friday morning a street fight between Eleven and Twelfth in Hull.

On Tuesday night the gymnasium class will organize for the coming October contests and games, such as volleyball, basketball and chinning. The series of Sunday meetings at the Wonderland Theatre should be of interest to all boys. There will be short talks and illustrated hymns. Personal and Briefs.

George Duval, source the late H. B. Duval, who came to Manchester on the death of his father, will return to Dayton, O., in a few days.

W. C. Timberlake, a young boy, is suffering greatly from swollen jaws. He had just been from an attack of typhoid fever when attacked with this last malady. His slight jaw has been lanced, but the pain has not been lessened. The doctors are puzzled over his condition.

Willie Dunnivant, a boy of eight, was painfully hurt yesterday with a knife. He was playing with some companions when accidentally hurt. The fatherless child will leave for the Virginia Military Institute on Tuesday. Roy Atwell, Raymond Paul, Harold Lewis, Aston Blankenship and Frank Johnson.

Composing an Opera. ANTWERP, September 23.—Jan Block, Belgium's greatest composer, announces that he is composing an opera for production in New York in 1910. The subject will remain a secret until the work is completed.

No Markets Saturday. NEW YORK, September 23.—The New York Stock Exchange will be closed Saturday on account of the day of the Hudson-Fulton celebration.
